PAPERS MADE PUBLIC

Those Relating to Investigation Into Glove Contracts.

GOES TO MR. KNOX.

Colonel Garlington of the Inspector General's Department Looked Into Matter and Report Goes to Advocate.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Secretary Root made public all the papers relating to the investigation into the government contract for gloves with E. R. Lyon. This contractor secured the gloves from Littaur Bros., the senior member of the firm, L. N. Littaur, being a member of congress. Secretary Root has referred the case to the department of justice in order that it may be ascertained if the law has been violated, and if it has, that appropriate measure may be taken. There is a statute which prohibits contracts for the government made directly or indirectly with a member of congress, and this was the basis of the investigation by the war department. Colonel Garlington of the inspector general's department was directed by Secretary Root to make an investigation of the whole matter. This was done, and his report referred to Judge Advocate Davis, who made an exhaustive review and submitted an opinion to Secretary Root. In the course of his report and opinion Gen. Davis says in part:

"It appears from the testimony that a contract was awarded to Lyon for 300 pairs of muskrat gloves at $1.54 per pair; later, a second contract for 20,000 pairs was awarded to Lyon at $1.70 per pair, a stipulation being inserted that deliveries under it could be increased 50 per cent, at the discretion of the officer making the contract. The government took advantage of the stipulation, and 30,601 pairs were actually called for and delivered under the last contract. Some discussion having arisen as to the price which Lyon was to pay for gauntlets was entered into between Littaur Bros and Lyon to the effect that an accurate account of the cost of manufacture was to be kept and if, after the contract was completed, it should prove that the cost of manufacture did not equal $1.65 per pair, Lyon was to receive one-half of the profits. There was a profit of $3537, one-half of which was credited to Lyon on the books of Littaur Bros. A case falling within the prohibition of the statute is clearly shown in the testimony, which, in the opinion of the this office, charges the department with the performance of the duty set forth in section 3729 of the revised statutes, and it is therefore recommended that a demand be made by the quartermaster general upon the firm of Littaur Bros. for the payment of whatever sum is found to have been paid in consideration of the contract with E. R. Lyon, as extended in accordance with its terms by the quartermaster's department."

NUN HIS COOK.

She Daily Carries the Meals of a Cardinal Into the Sistine Chapel.

Rome, Aug. 4.—One of the daily sights at the Vatican now is the arrival of the nun whom Cardinal Veseary, prince archbishop of the Gran, and primate of Hungary, brought with him from Hungary to act as his cook. Cardinal Veseary is the wealthiest of the cardinals, and is reputed to have an income of $400,000 annually. He desired to have his cook enter the conclave, but the presence of women being forbidden by the rules, he arranged to have her cook his dinner outside and bring it daily to the Sistine chapel. She comes in a cab, escorted by two Hungarian soldiers in uniform.

It is reported that when Cardinal Sarti, patriarch of Venice, received the good wishes of his friends he replied: "Oh, no; I purchased a return ticket when I left Venice."

Rumored Compact.

Rome, Aug. 4.—Out of all the rumors and gossip which is afloat concerning what has taken place in the conclave, the most persistent report is to the effect that the Rampolla and Serafino Vanutelli factions have remained compact, and that the attempt of one faction to press forward new candidates in the hope of breaking the strength of the other had failed.

DEFENDANTS TESTIFY

They Were Placed on the Stand at Cynthiaua Monday.

CLOSELY QUESTIONED

Jett Declared That Marcum and Himself Had Amicable Relations and Other Man Spoke of Courthouse Movements.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 4.—Curtis Jett was placed on the stand and interrogated by Judge James D. Black of his counsel. He said he was friendly with J. B. Marcum and, with the exception of a few words with him some four years ago, they had always been friends. He corroborated Barney Schiff, who testified with the prosecution that Jett was talking to Joe Moore and himself before the killing. Jett said after the shots were fired he walked into the court house and looked about, but seeing nothing, returned by the side door, the way he came, and went across the street, and that he did not aid in helping Marcum, who was then dying, and around whose body others were running to give aid. Jett said he saw Ewen running around the court house. He, a few minutes after this, saw Tom White on the street, and with him went down to a place near the depot, where they crossed the river and visited his grandmother Hargis, mother of Judge Hargis, and there had dinner. He said he met Mrs. Mary Johnson, who asked him if he had killed her brother. He told her he did not, but that they would accuse him of it. He and White both came back that evening to town and went to Freeman's saloon and there called for beer, and having none, they left. Before he left town that morning he bought a bottle of whisky at Goodloe Combs' and took a part of it to his grandmother. Jett's testimony corroborated many other witnesses who have testified for the prosecution as to his actions on that fateful day. He denied having conversations with witnesses who declared, on the witness stand he had spoken to them about the murder of Marcum. He gave a full account of his actions up to the time of his arrest. The defendant showed his right hand to the jury upon which two joints of the ring finger were taken off a few weeks before the shooting by working with saws.

The main feature of Monday was the cross-examination by Tom Marcum of Thomas White, who was next placed on the stand by the defense. Marcum is one of the attorneys for the prosecution. He is a brother of the dead man, and resides at Muscogee, I. T. White came from a place eighteen miles from Jackson, looking for work, according to his testimony, and did not get it, although he had tried for two days. His testimony corroborated several other witnesses for the prosecution who said that he had gone into the side door of the court house and had come out the front door.

This was Ewen's testimony, and agreed with that of Miss Clark and Miss Rawlins, who testified Saturday. Ewen said that White turned and leered at Marcum as he came from the court house, and White did not deny that he had turned and looked at Marcum as he passed out the front door. His testimony corroborated Mrs. Horde, and sister of Marcum, who said that he and Curtis Jett came into her house on Saturday afternoon looking for her brother, only that White said Jett was not the person with him at that time. White says that after dinner, the day Marcum was killed, he left Jett at his grandmother's, while Jett says that both came together. He says he was looking for Callahan immediately before the shot was fired, and that was his reason for going into the court house. Miss Clark on Saturday testified that she saw Sheriff Callahan in front of Hargis' store immediately in front of the court house sitting in a rocking chair until after the shots were fired, when he sprang to a window with a revolver in his hand.

MONETARY COMMISSION.

Expects to Leave For St. Petersburg In a Short Time.

Washington, Aug. 4.—A report has been received at the state department from the United States monetary commission, which is investigating the question of currency for silver-using countries. The commission has visited London, Paris, The Hague and Berlin, and was expecting to leave for St. Petersburg in a short time. According to the report, the proposal of the American commission for a ratio of 32 to 1 for new silver currency for oriental countries has been fairly well received, although the French commission suggested the ratio of 31 to 1, which is one-half of the French ratio at the present time. The representatives of the Chinese government here manifested a very lively interest in the proceedings of the commission at the different European capitals that have been visited.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, putting it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased. Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: "I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me."

Kodol Digests What You Eat and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

QUARANTINE ON.

It Is Being Rigorously Enforced at San Luis Potosi.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 4.—The quarantine against San Luis Potosi, Mex., for yellow fever, which was ordered established Sunday by the United States marine hospital authorities at Washington, has been rigorously established at this point, and all incoming passengers who cannot make affidavit that they have been away from an infected point for five days are being turned back. Three persons were returned to Mexico Monday.

While the state health officer has received no specific instructions as to the enforcement of a quarantine, he is acting in conjunction with the local authorities.

Not much apprehension is felt of the introduction of yellow fever from San Luis Potosi, as it is thought the epidemic will soon die out at that point owing to its high elevation and delightfully cool climate.

DEED OF NEGROES.

They Mutilate a Young Invalid in a Terrible Manner.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 4.—George Hearshey, an invalid aged nineteen, while hunting squirrels on his father's farm near here, was approached by two prowling negroes. They grabbed the boy, searched his clothes for money and finding none, tore his clothes from him. While one negro held him another mutilated him with a knife. The boy succeeded in reaching home. He told his story and his father gave the alarm. Mounted his horse and called for volunteers to wreak vengeance upon the fleeing negroes. Two hundred men and boys joined in the chase. Neighboring farms and towns were warned by telephone and the country was scoured. No trace of the negroes was found. The hunt proceeded until nightfall. Sheriff Morigal with a detachment of deputies and police followed the mob to prevent a lynching if possible.

He was commanded to halt, but continued to run until brought down by a volley. Millikin died almost instantly. Nine bullet holes was found in his body. John Hunter, son-in-law of Millikin, was made to accompany the mob in a fruitless search for another negro and in an attempt to escape was fatally shot in the back. The wife of Millikin was struck over the head with a gun and painfully injured.

IS ELECTED POPE

He Has For Years Been Patriarch of Venice.

TAKES THE TITLE OF POPE PIUS X.

Noted For Strict Uprightness of His Life and Liberality.

IS CONSIDERED TIMID IN EXPRESSING VIEWS

Pope Leo XIII., in April Last, in Conversation With an Italian, Predicted New Pontiff as His Successor.

Rome, Aug. 4.—Cardinal Sarto, patriarch of Venice, was elected pope.

Cardinal Machi, secretary of apostolic briefs, announced to the crowd assembled before St. Peter's that Cardinal Sarto had been elected pope and he had taken the name of Pius X. The troops on duty immediately lined up on the piazza and presented arms. At 12:10 Tuesday afternoon Pope Pius X. appeared inside the balcony of the basilica and blessed the populace amid acclamations of the enormous crowd assembled upon the piazza. Thousands of persons within the cathedral cheered and waved their hats. While Prince Chiga, master of the conclave, was drawing up the official act of the election and acceptance of the newly elected pope, the latter, surrounded by friends, disappeared into a small room near the altar, where he donned with, who can say what feelings of triumph and humility, the white robes of the office. Pius X., assisted by his confessor, who first knelt and kissed the master's hand and thus received the first apostolic blessing given by Pius X. The new pope was attired all in white with the exception of the red hat, which is quite regular, but he did not stop to remove red cardinal's stockings for white papal ones, and these showed as he raised his gown to move forward. When he was quite robed secretary of conclave, Mr. Merry del Val, kneeling, offered him the papal white cap amidst breathless silence. He did not follow precedent created by Pope Leo, who declined to give his red cap to the master of ceremonies as a sign that he was soon to be created a cardinal, but with a slight smile Sarto took the white cap, placed it calmly on his head and dropped the red one lightly on the head of Mr. Merry del Val amidst a murmur of approval. This is taken as a certain indication that the happy recipient is soon to be raised a cardinal. As the new pontiff stepped from behind the altar, the only touch of color about him being his red and gold shoes, he really looked to be embodiment of his holy office. His face was pale and clearly softened by emotion. He paused a moment as he came before the expectant cardinals and seated himself on the throne with a hurried movement as though he had suddenly grown weak. His back was to the altar and he was enthroned to serve the so-called "first obedience" of cardinals. They came forward, one by one, some calm and smiling, others sober and non-committal, while still others found considerable difficulty even at this hour of concealing their too-obvious disappointment. All kissed his hand and foot while he saluted each on the cheek with the kiss of peace. Then all broke into the Te Deum with such effect that scarcely an eye was dry. Pius X. then rose and in a voice at first tremulous, but gradually becoming full and firm, administered the papal blessing to all members of the sacred college. It was received with bowed and uncovered heads. The Fisherman's ring, not yet having been found, a new one designed by Camerlengo Gregila was placed on the pontiff's finger as a symbol of renewed power and evidence that the Catholic church had one more sovereign head.

Sarto bore himself with becoming dignity and gave no outward sign of exultation in this supreme moment of his life. In the meanwhile masons and carpenters had been busy breaking down the doors so the cardinal deacons, together with the master of ceremonies and conclavists and many others, might proceed to the balcony of St. Peter's. The populace waiting in the piazza already at 11:30 o'clock saw a tiny thread of smoke almost transparent, which warned them what to expect, so when the windows on the balcony slowly opened and the great gleaming cross was seen the excitement and impatience was heightened to the extreme. Slowly Cardinal Machi, secretary of apostolic briefs, advanced and exclaimed in a loud voice: "Annuntio vobis gaudium magnum habemus papen eminentissimum ac Reverendissimum Dominum Sardinalem Joseph Sarto qui sibi imposuit nomen Pium X."

Then the bells of St. Peter's rang out as did those of all churches of Rome, giving the news to the world. After a short rest, imposed by fatigue following the emotion caused by his election the new pontiff joined his court in the ducal saloon for the solemn benediction which he was about to give to the people of Rome.

As Cardinal Machi returned to the Sistine chapel, after having performed his pious duty, the new pope rose and an effort to make some kind of procession made, but Pius X. was literally carried triumph to his cell, followed by a great concourse and preceded by a cross. He was stopped every step or two by those anxious to kiss his ring and receive his papal blessing, which Sarto accorded with great benignity and patience. As the new pope passed along many of those present tried to prove they had always known what the result would be and how satisfied they all were. "Why, of course, I shouted one, "before the conclave gathered I always said it would be he." If any of these compliments reached the ears of the pontiff he gave no sign thereof. When he arrived at the door of his cell the pope turned and, raising his hands, gave in a voice almost suffocated with emotion his benediction to the assembly, which received it on bended knees.

SOMETHING OF SARTO.

Liberal in His Ideas, Learned and Good Administrator and Organizer.
Rome, Aug. 4.—Giuseppe Sarto was born in Rieti, diocese of Treviso, June 2, 1835 and was created cardinal by Leo XIII. at the consistory of June 12, 1893, receiving the title of S. Bernardo delle Terme. He is also patriarch of Venice since June, 1895, and bishop of Mantua. He belong to the ecclesiastical congregations of bishops and regulars, sacred rites, indulgences and sacred relics.

Cardinal Sarto enjoys great popularity in his diocese, and is honored by all for his purity, for the strict uprightness of his life, and for liberal ideas. He is a modest and agreeable man, highly cultivated, very kind-hearted, still strong and robust in spite of his sixty-eight years. He has never taken great part in the political and public life of the church, but divided his time between study and good works. Although most faithful to the holy see he was presented to the king and queen of Italy in Venice. He may be considered among the more liberal member of the Italian episcopate and sacred college. He is rather timid in expressing an opinion. It is said that Leo XIII. always thought very highly of him, and sided with him on one occasion when Sarto disapproved of Rampolla's policy.

He is very learned in ecclesiastical doctrines; is modest, energetic, a good administrator and organizer, patron of arts and his seriousness has always been proverbial. Early in April Pope Leo, in conversation with Father Perosi the Italian composer, said in speaking of Cardinal Sarto: "I hold him very dear, Perosi, as in future he may be able to do much for you. We firmly believe he will be our successor." H has been known for many years as one of the greatest preachers in the Catholic church.

LONDON SURPRISED.

Even High Church Dignitaries Asked "Who Is Sarto?"

London, Aug. 4.—News of the election of Cardinal Sarto as pope reached England first through the Associated Press dispatch from New York. The fact was communicated to the church authorities, and Mr. Johnson, who is in charge of church affairs here pending the appointment of a successor to Cardinal Vaughan, said: "I am glad the election is over and the suspense ended. Cardinal Sarto is midway between the older and younger element of the sacred college, so he probably has many useful years to live. He is active and energetic."

To the Catholics of London the election was a great surprise. The first question asked, not only by laymen but by high church dignitaries, was: "Who is Sarto?" Books of reference were quickly hunted up in order to ascertain a knowledge of the career of the new pontiff. Cable dispatches were received at the archbishop's house from the English college at Rome, formally announcing the fact of Sarto's election. Churchmen at Westminster expressed the opinion that the new pope is a quiet ecclesiastic, who has not mixed much in politics, and will probably pursue a policy designed to harmonize conflicting interests. A few who are acquainted with him say he is highly esteemed by the Italian government and a close friend of King Humbert.

PARIS PLEASSED.

Believed That New Pope Will Continue Predecessor's Policy.

Paris, Aug. 4.—The election of Cardinal Sarto as pope created a distinctly favorable impression in governmental quarters here, removing the fear that the choice might fall upon a radical or reactionary candidate. The foreign office received first information of the election from press sources. The news spread rapidly among officials and caused widespread comment. Although not espousing any particular candidacy, the official feeling had been favorable to one who would continue the conservative policy of the late pope. Cardinal Rampolla at first seemed to be the best exponent of continuance of former policy, but he lacked the necessary strength. Cardinals Sarto and Di Pietro are regarded as being closely identified with Rampolla and as likely to share his general views. The choice of Sarto, therefore, is satisfactory as apparently insuring the continuance of the recent policy of moderation followed by the holy see in its relations with France

POWERS CASE.

For the Third Time ex-Secretary of State Is Placed on Trial.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 4.—The commonwealth announced "ready" when the special term of the Scott circuit court, presided over by Special Judge J. R. Robbins of Mayfield, was convened to try former Secretary Caleb Powers for the third time on a charge of complicity in the Goebel assassination. The state called about fifty witnesses. Among the witnesses is Frank Cecil of Bell county, a star witness in the last Jim Howard trial. He now hails from Oskaloosa, Kan. Among the defense witnesses are about thirty who have never taken the stand before in this case. Fully a dozen of them were defense witnesses in the last trial of Jas. Howard.

Oil Soon Struck.

Crowley, La., Aug. 4.—The Champion Oil company, it is reported, has struck oil in its holdings near Canal switch at a depth of 117 feet.

POINTS ABOUT TURTLES.

They Are Not So Much Like One Another as Many People Think.

In moist places in the fields and meadows may be found the wood tortoise, a sober sort of turtle of a brown or reddish brown color above, the shell having a ridge in its middle along the back, says Nature Study. Each plate of the shell underneath has a black blotch.

In mud holes and in small ponds, often resting on a log or stone above the water, one may almost always find the painted turtle, which has the margin of the shell marked red, while the shell underneath is yellow. These turtles are not so easily captured as the wood turtles, for they are rather timid and often slip into the water when approached, but with patience and ingenuity they can be outwitted at last and one secured for examination.

It will be rare good fortune to find a turtle at a meal and see him hold his food, sometimes with one fore foot, sometimes with the other, but never with both at once, as cats and dogs often do.

After watching him for awhile try to find whether he always draws his tail in on the same side of his box house. Experiment with the same turtle over and over; then sometimes try other turtles in the same way and find out for yourself whether turtles vary in this matter of hiding away their tails. This is more important than you can imagine. If all the animals and plants of the same sort were always the same there would never be any change in the living world.

Count the toes on the fore feet and on the hind feet, noticing whether there are the same number all around. As you find other turtles, particularly in different parts of the country, if you travel about, or in such museums as you can visit, see what differences you can find in this matter of the number and arrangement of turtles' toes. It is not so silly as it may appear to some people. Notice also that some turtles have webbed feet, to enable them to swim the better.

Manage in some way to open the turtle's mouth and find whether it has teeth, or only hard and rather sharp cutting edges along the jaws. Touch the eyes gently with a small stick and see the turtle draw a thin skin over them. This is the third eyelid, the same as in hens, pigeons and birds generally. Notice that the feet and tail are covered with scales; then some time examine the foot of a hen or pigeon and see that they are scaly also. In this matter of the third eyelid and the scales the birds and the turtles have features in common. Perhaps some time you will learn how it happened and will find it a very interesting story.—New York Tribune.

Appropriating a Crest.

There is a restaurant keeper with a new and capacious place on the upper west side about whom a story is going the rounds. This "mine host" makes no secret of the fact that when he arrived in America as a youth he had more fingers and toes than dollars and that it is due to his own industry that he now can command his little army of cooks, waiters and other help. When he opened an addition to his rooms recently, his friends were surprised to see a crest emblazoned conspicuously on various parts of the wall. The glassware also bears the crest.

"I say, Pat," said a friend recently, "where did you get that crest?"

"That belonged to a king of my name in Ireland," was the reply.

"And I suppose you were one of the royal family?"

"Well, I don't know," was the confidential reply. "I looked it up in the Astor library. There were several hundred years to account for, but I thought I'd take a chance."—New York Times.

Finding More Material.

"How large is your Mammoth cave?" asked the foreign tourist.

"Nobody knows exactly," said the native. "It's so large, though, and people get lost in it so easily, that when a man is about to explore it he makes his will and wishes his weeping friends goodbye."

"Most astonishing! I never heard that before!"

"Oh, well, of course, it isn't quite so bad as that. I was only joking."

[Entry in foreign tourist's notebook: "Another curious custom among Americans is that when they tell an amazing lie they call it a joke."]—Chicago Tribune.

True Mercy.

"Prisoner," said the judge, "you are convicted of bigamy, of having married two wives. Have you any plea for mercy before the sentence of the court is imposed on you?"

"Yes, judge," said the prisoner. "Give me as big a sentence in jail as you can."

"What?"

"I want to keep out of the clutches of those two wives as long as I can, and a long jail sentence will be true mercy."—Baltimore Herald.

Charity.

Charity itself commands us, where we know no ill, to think well of all. But friendship, that always goes a pitch higher, gives a man a peculiar right and claim to the good opinion of his friend.

Great men should think of opportunity and not of time. Time is the excuse of feeble minded and puzzled spirits.—Disraeli.
